What I'm Trying to Do:

What I want to get out of a future job is something I'm still trying to figure out but I'm using my college class to figure out a more specialized field. But right now I know that I want to get into something in the computer science field. Everything in the classes that we have done ive had a really good time trying to figure out solutions to the homeworks that my professors have given me.

Work Experince:

Previous experiences are that I have not worked in any field that uses computer science. Some of the previous work experience is that I've worked as a coach since my senior year of high school in Men's Volleyball, and I've worked at Potbelly Sandwiches for 4 months. In addition to being a current sophomore in college I'm on my college's D1 Volleyball team. And in my mind that is one of the best things for my work ethic. Because my freshman year in college I've learned how to be a good teammate and work hard. Using that experience really helped me do well at all my summer jobs.

My Coding knowledge currently only consists of 2 semesters of classes and I'm currently in my 3rd semester and am working in 2 more classes. I have a solid understanding of Python and HTML, and I have dabbled in Java and C++.

Final Remarks:

Even though I only really have one year of experience, I really enjoy this topic and think I can do well in this field. I feel that I have a really good work ethic that could set me apart from other people. But i'm also currently not the most experienced person out there but i'm still learning and i'm young so you employers can mold me into something that fits what you want.
